Being Active!

Sports as instruments for active citizenship

Project Number 603102

A wide-angle photograph of the Colosseum in Rome, Italy, taken from a low angle. The iconic elliptical amphitheater is made of reddish-brown brick and stone, showing significant wear and missing sections. The sky is a vibrant blue with wispy white clouds. In the foreground, a paved path leads towards the monument, flanked by green grass and some trees on the left. A blue text box is overlaid on the left side of the image.

Project Description

The idea of the project was born thinking about potential of sports activities as tool for promoting active citizenship for young people.

In fact, making sports is one of human activities the most able to involve people without any sort of barriers, to connect people over their differences, to improve building communities and reinforcing identities.

That's why a lot of non-profit organisations, in many field of action, historically use sports activities for reaching their objectives. For example there are organisations that use sports for promoting integration of foreigner people, of immigrants, for improving social inclusion of disadvantaged people, for reinforcing communities, for enhancing quality of life of disabled people, and many other example could be possible to mention.

So, what SOS Europa propose is to create a network of European non-profit organisations with the scope of identifying best practices, instruments and tools for using sports activities and programmes with the aim of stimulate active participation and active citizenship of young people.

Sports activities in fact have great potential in this sense, because make easier creating relationships and connections between young people crossing all possible differences (ethnic, religious, cultural, social, etc...).

In this way, sports are really efficient as instruments for building communities and in particular to stimulate young people in staying with the others, sharing experiences, creating relationships and, most of all, having empathy with other young people that live same experiences.

Objectives of the project will be:

- developing instruments for stimulating through sports commitment of young citizens in communities life and active citizenship,
- identifying common instruments for improving through sports activities young people attitude to participation in social issues,
- creating a table of best practices, instruments, methods helpful for helping non profit organisations in facing problems and delicate issues in society (integration and hospitality of migrants and refugees, social inclusion of disadvantaged people, improvement of life quality, etc...),
- creating a European network of non-profit organisations that use sports activities as tools for improving society,
- creating a system of evaluation of results for social and inclusive activities realised through sports projects.
